

Bubbling Up & Unbound Voices

*A Two-Part Ritual of Testimony,
Radical Presence, and Collective Liberation*

Healing Grace Studio

Bubbling Up is a participatory art installation that invites people of the global majority to share stories of racial harm, survival, and resistance. These stories live on transparent “bubbles” as visual acts of testimony, creating a living archive of voices too often silenced. The exhibit invites the public to witness, reflect, and respond.

As a racialized artist committed to collective healing, Grace uses performance not as entertainment, but as resistance. This work is a direct response to the systemic violence faced by people of the global majority, including xenophobia, intergenerational trauma, and the institutional silencing of our truths.

Unbound Voices is not a traditional play. It is a ritual of memory and mourning, a reclamation of our stories from institutions that silence us. It is also a call to action – inviting both racialized and settler communities into deeper reflection, solidarity, and truth-telling.

Unbound Voices

Grace Gee is the producer, playwright, and solo performer of Unbound Voices, a multidisciplinary performance born from her social justice healing art project, Bubbling Up. Blending movement, testimony, and radical truth-telling, the work channels ancestral memory, lived experience, and resistance into a stage of liberation.
